GP2X Wiz announces App Store in August Gamepark is about to release the GP2X Wiz open source handheld gaming console, with the company informing TechRadar of its plans to open its first game content open store this summer GPH does R&D on the SDK and soon will do so, read the announcement just the Gamepark Korean HQ. Gamepark Holdings Co., Ltd. will open a game content store during August 2009, the statement continues. From August, 2009 everyone will be able to produce games and other applications and share and sell them with users around GP2X App StoreSo if they feel like making their own games and distributing them to GP2X owners around the world - much like Apple's hugely successful App Store, they will soon get that exact opportunity. GPH has been working in the store since November 2008 and runs tests in the store in June 2009 after launching the GP2X Wiz in the UK. User feedback will be used to make it a perfect experience for everyone, so you will be able to download free software instead of buy paid programs. The Game Content Open Store (FunGP) is online, but it also works from GP2X Wiz, using the Wi-Fi adapter (must be displayed separately on the console). Stay tuned for a full and in-depth hand on the GP2X Wiz due in the coming weeks. The 2K MyNBA2K18 released on the App Store and Google Play, but the companion app will be in full potential on September 19, when NBA 2K18 will be launched on PC and consoles. However, those who pre-order the video game on either platform will get it on September 15, four days before its official release. Anyway, the good news about MyNBA2K18 is not only a companion app for NBA 2K18, it's also a full-featured theme card game. So, aside from the fact that it fully integrates with NBA 2K18, the app includes a collectible NBA 2K themed card game, MyTEAM Mobile, which allows players to collect their favorite NBA player cards and legends to challenge other competitors in the world of fast games, playoff tournaments, and game special events. The new app includes more than 300 new cards for the NBA 2017-2018 season. It also comes with daily goals that offer in-game rewards each time they are completed, and team sign-in incentives that charge players team packages when they log in daily. MyNBA2K18 is available for free through the App Store and Google Play, but also includes in-app purchases. Players can also use the mobile app to buy console items on the go with an expanded MyPLAYER Store. source: App Store, Google Play subscribe to our newsletter! Picture: WikiCommons Tim Shelby At the start of the 2018 NBA season, Jamal Murray led the Denver Nuggets to a 115-107 victory over the Boston Celtics. As the hour ended with the Nuggets' inevitable win, Murray decided to shoot one last shot. The game was essentially over, but Jamal Murray had 48 points and wanted 50. He missed the shot, but the Celtics were nervous anyway. Celtics star Kyrie Irving called him thirsty and threw the match ball into the crowd, leaving Murray unable to hold on to a career-high 48 points. Needless to say, throwing 50 points in an NBA game is a big deal. When Michael Jordan returned to the NBA after playing baseball, the world was skeptical it would ever be the same. That all changed in only the fifth game back. He scored 55 points at Madison Square Garden and was officially returned. The half-century mark is one of the most sought-after single-player performances in basketball. Klay Thompson, one of the best shooters in the world, called it special. LeBron James, one of the best players in the world, says it's surreal. Many fans say it is awesome and almost every player wants to do it.
